WE'RE BACK WITH A BANG!

The world stopped spinning and skipped to a halt abruptly when we were interrupted with a deadly disease. The halt wasn't just on the normal functioning of the offices and more, but on the smiles and liveliness of people as well. However, the monster that is the deadly virus has reigned enough and has consumed more than enough of people's times and their smiles. The roads look busier than ever now, the children are seen again, storming round the streets and going about their mischiefs, with dogs of all sizes, big or small or even gigantic, running after them and joining their shenanigans. The women and men also have chimed in, and they are seen arguing on the same streets, either by bargaining with the vegetable vendors or by the honking of their horns. The young girls and boys with their chirpy voices and quirky smiles, that a year ago were a sight for sore eyes, are now seen storming the bus stands every now and again. The spinning of the world, the movements of people is returning to normalcy, and we can safely assume that all of the chaos is settling back in and is back with a bang. School/College, a word that was often missed or even forgotten by people is now back again and is being conducted in person. The simple joys that were stripped away from online teaching, something that both the teachers and students would actually agree upon, are now back and open to be explored and experienced. Classmates who were reduced to small boxes on screen are back in flesh who can play with them on the grounds again. It all feels so new and nostalgic at the same time!

to say that I was a part of the GLS University, Harvard business school entrepreneurship program, I got to learn so many things related to entrepreneurship, the study pattern is quite different from what we have in India. The practical-based comprehensive questions make a person fall into that situation and think about what could be done which is a great way to learn. Real-life examples make it more relatable to the context and cognitive learning can be achieved.

In a nutshell, I would like to say that I am very thankful to GLS University for giving us this opportunity to learn with such a great business school and I am very much obliged

E-TALK ON ART OF ADVOCACY AT GLS UNIVERSITY

Faculty of Law, GLS University organized a Special e-talk on “The Subtle Art of Advocacy: Prospective Challenges of Legal Profession” on November 22, 2021. The session was delivered by Mr. Harish Salve QC.

Dr. Sudhir Nanavati, President, GLS University, gave the welcome address to the Guest of the event. He complemented the unique personality of Mr. Salve and mentioned that, in spite of being such an Internationally acclaimed lawyer he is a very humble person.

At the outset Mr. Harish Salve mentioned, that one must be very observant and dedicated to one’s professional life to become a learned international lawyer. He highlighted that this age is marked by disruption and has evolved to a great extent, there is a tsunami of change in the realm of legal profession as well, not only in India but also at international front.

He moved on to mentioning that the advocacy of 1960s and 70s was very different and somewhere along the way law has become stagnant. “We lost touch with what was needed to be done in the field of law and this reflected in the backlog of cases. This case log crisis has affected all the countries differently. In order to address this menace, effective justice delivery system is important. He continued to mention that it is a sorry state of affair in India, where in a case which is disposed in two years, is considered as fast track which is one of the reasons why citizens are losing hope in the system. 1990s saw the introduction of technology in the legal arena but we still struggle with regionalization. Now even judges are becoming little acceptive of technology in legal process.” He correctly mentioned, that, today’s world, values the quality of service which is provided. The society measures one by cost efficiency, time efficiency along with one’s talent and the results delivered. He also emphasised the need to make the legal system user friendly and also proposed that the Civil Procedure Code should be rewritten, so as to make it understandable by the lay man. He also mentioned that it is a matter of pride, that India has become a preferred destination for foreign investment and therefore proposed that different dispute resolution machineries which are fast, cost and time effective should be adopted.

While talking about the art of advocacy, he mentioned the Indian jurist, Shri. Nani Palkivala and appreciated his lucid manner of advocacy wherein he would convey the most complex of legal issues in a simple language with clarity. He also emphasised that a lawyer should be a master of his own case and he should be able to focus on the relevant points and should be able to project it before the court.

Towards the end various questions were posed to Mr. Harish Salve by the students wherein answering to one of the questions Mr. Harish Salve mentioned that international law is a growing and fascinating legal domain, he shared his experience during the Khulbuhsan Jadav case before the International Court of Justice. He also shared that it was a completely different experience for him to argue before multilingual eleven judges and conclude his case in 90 minutes at International Court of Justice.

Mr. Harish Salve concluded the session by motivating the students of law and said, “Embrace the World, Don’t Fear the World”.

CHANGE BEGINS AT THE SCHOOLS

This has been well asserted ever since 2019, when the world came under the reeling impact of the Corona Virus Pandemic. The daily life of people across the globe has come to a grinding halt. Humanity is facing a challenge like never before gathering the loose ends of hope.

Tremendous loss of lives, crashing medical systems toppling economies and a helpless educational system trying hard to abridge inequalities across the world.

The Pandemic has brought a complex array of challenges and repercussions for each & every individual on the earth especially children who are not the face of the Pandemic, yet happen to be the biggest victims.

Although the impact of the Pandemic is not equally distributed amongst all the children of the world, the evil effects that it is carving on the young minds will take years to fade off.

Sudden stringent lockdowns have pushed the children into a forced confinement. The virtual classroom has been like a silver lining trying to help them cope up with the loss of studies at school, yet it has made them realize the importance of being at school - studying, playing & enjoying life along with their peers.

Ironically, the gadgets which most of the parents have become like support systems. This has increased screen time affecting their eyes. A sedentary lifestyle has started posing physical threats. Children are undergoing a phase of anxiety, stress, anger and resentment. They have several questions in their minds and hope to get answers to them. In these uncertain and catastrophic times all that we could do is keep up the 'Never die spirit' because-

'Only if we look at the sunshine that clouds would fall behind us'
